SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN

A Painter's Troubles

NEW YORK Jan [illegible] Virgilio Tojetti the well known painter [illegible] who it is alleged deserted his wife and child in San Francisco [illegible] New York with Miss Kitty Hart, was interviewed in his studio yesterday by a Star reporter. He did not deny he had a wife in San Francisco but said he had obtained a divorce and married Miss Hayes who was present at the interview with him [illegible]. He said he learned his San Francisco wife was seeking a divorce and he supplanted her by going to Salt Lake city where he procured a legal divorce after which he married Miss Hayes. In answer to a question as to whether he thought a Salt Lake divorce legal he replied that he didn't think it would be recognized in this state but was legal in the west. He said the publication of this story was through a former partner of his who could not paint and used to affix his name to pictures that Tojetti had painted and sell them. His partner still resides in San Francisco

Railroad Matters.

NEW YORK Jan 30—The Times Boston special says A statement is now made that reports of negotiations conducted in New York brought back by the Atchison people present give general satisfaction, and the proposition to save several million dollars worth of construction in California and connect the Atlantic and Pacific with the Southern Pacific at Mohave is favorably received by Boston interests. It is also stated that the opposition to the $16,500,000 Atlantic and Pacific plan in Boston before its cancellation was so great that large Atchison stockholders would very likely have defeated the project of completing the subscription. The objections were based upon the unnecessary issuance of Atlantic and Pacific stock and secondly upon the raising of so large an amount of money at this time. Under the new plan if the Atlantic and Pacific builds to the Colorado river less than $3,000,000 will be needed for this section if to Mohave about $9,000,000 will be required. In either event it is understood no Atlantic and Pacific stock will be issued

Almost an Agreement.

NEW YORK Jan 30—The Evening Express says it is reported upon good authority that the Union and Central Pacific railroad companies are agreed upon all questions except as to Union Pacific interests in the Utah Central road and its branches. The Union Pacific owns a three-fourths interest in that line and the Central Pacific desires to be admitted to a proprietary partnership in the road. The Oregon Short line is to be completed this year to the Wood river mines in Idaho

Ravages by the Rains.

NASHVILLE Jan 30—The Tennessee River at Johnsonville has reached the highest point known. During the present flood the town has virtually been destroyed and the R R bridge is threatened east of Knoxville. On Saturday the tallest peak of Buffalo mountains having been undermined by constant rains, fell from a height of 300 feet, alarming the citizens for a distance of 30 miles.

A Horrible Confession.

ST LOUIS, Jan 30—Russell Brown, grandson of old Mrs Davis, confessed that in company with a dissolute companion named McGlew he killed the old lady Saturday night, seized her rings and took her jewelry. She was left unconscious but died during the night.

Cannon's Confidence.

NEW YORK Jan 30—Elder Cannon of Utah who is in town, was interviewed by a reporter to-day. He believes that in the contest in which he is now engaged for his seat with Campbell he will be successful, as precedent and right are on his side, and that if defeated it will be by the powerful influence brought to bear against him by his opponents and the government party. "There is nothing new to be considered, save perhaps the latest aspect of the polygamy question, and if Campbell, who only received 1,357 votes, to 18,168 cast for me, is admitted, it will be in the face of all precedent. I do not think congress will dare take such an unjust step, or that the country will approve such a course. My defence against this charge of ineligibility on account of being an alien was ample and complete, and I have nothing to add to it now"

In answer to the question as to whether there was a disposition on the part of the Mormon element to resist the passage of laws suppressing polygamy, he said:

"No, the government will meet with no resistance on the part of the people of Utah. Such a course would be hopeless. However they may regard any laws of this nature they will never resort to arms for redress. They will regard themselves as martyrs and will remain in Utah, where all their interests lie, relying on the people of the country for justice."

He would not express an opinion with regard to the proposition to divide Utah and apportion her among Colorado and other territories. He denied that the Mormons were inciting the Utes and other tribes to hostility nor was there any truth in the statement that his people were selling them guns and ammunition

The Anti-Mormon Bill.

NEW YORK, Jan 30—Reviewing its various articles on the anti-Mormon boom, the Tribune says—There are fair prospects that some action will be taken by the present Congress, by which the Mormon evil may be effectively reached at last. This is the opinion of Representative Willets of Michigan, who takes a deep interest in the subject

S F Hall, first Chief Justice of Colorado, gives an interesting account of the establishing of a Territorial Government in Utah in 1850, and of the regret that Fillmore subsequently expressed, that he had placed Brigham Young at its head

Rev. Dr. Newman preached in this city last night on the peril of the country from toleration of Mormonism and its features of evil were set forth by Rev Gallagher who has done missionary work in Utah.

WASHINGTON CITY.

A Chapter of Growls.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Times' Washington: President Arthur pleases no one, though he has excited no great hostility except from Blaine, perhaps. Senatorial influence counts for little at present and senators sharply criticize the man who went to Albany less than a year ago in behalf of senatorial prerogative, and now ignores it. He is criticized for his late rising, and it is remarked that congress sometimes meets and adjourns before he has breakfasted, so that that business is greatly delayed by his sloth. Some of his personal appointments will bring on a fight, and extreme stalwarts accuse him of intriguing for his own re-election. He won't succeed, however. Valuable as an ally he has never been regarded as a leader. He is alienating himself from old friends and making no new ones.

The Movement for a New Trial.

In the criminal court District Attorney Corkhill applied to the court to fix a day for hearing argument upon the motion for a new trial against C J Guiteau, stating he was willing to-morrow should be assigned. Scoville called the attention of the court to the fact that one of the affidavits in support of the motion had annexed to it a copy of the Evening Critic. The allegation was that during progress of the trial the paper had been read by or to the jury. It bore on the margin what purports to be the signature of four jurors. The jurors deny that they saw any newspapers or put their names upon any newspaper during the time they were empaneled. This raised an issue of fact which was very important to be determined. It was not a matter that court could determine on ex parte affidavits. The jury admitted that during the time they were empaneled they gave their autographs to various persons, and that might be important. He should have opportunity to cross examine men in that connection to determine whether the signatures upon the newspaper were genuine. The full names of two jurors were on the paper, and that of the district attorney. One of them was spelled wrong

A Subject Well Investigated

CHICAGO, Jan 30—An Inter Ocean correspondent has interviewed all the Guiteau jurors and obtained undisputed proof that they never had a paper while on the jury, that none of them wrote their names but only once was a piece of newspaper found in their rooms, and then it was delivered to the bailiff. That they were more carefully guarded and observed than the prisoner, that one whose name was found in that paper spoken of in the Guiteau affidavit was misspelled; that the name of another was written in German, a thing he never did unless by special request; that another man's name appeared who had been unable to handle a pen on account of nervous affliction, that there was no ink in the room where the writing on the papers was in ink; that J W Guiteau called on the jurors and got their names in an autograph album and asked leading questions whereon to found his affidavit

A Piece of Forgery.

The four jurymen whose signatures it is alleged appear in the Critic appended to affidavits filed by defense in the Guiteau case Saturday with the motion for a new trial deny most positively that a copy of that or any other paper was ever in their apartments or hotel. They say they never had a pen in their hands during the whole course of the trial except to write autographs for outside parties and that this was always done in a room occupied by the bailiff and in the immediate presence of the officers. The general impression of those who have examined the matter is that it is a clever piece of forgery

Guiteau Briefs.

The jury indignantly deny that they read newspapers as alleged in Scoville's motion for a new trial

The people feel that Guiteau has had his day in court and that further lenity is absurd and mischievous, and that whatever the merits of the appeal—and lawyers do not think them substantial it is pretty safe to predict that Guiteau will not get it now that a verdict is rendered on any technicality

John Guiteau's Opinion

John W Guiteau says the names on the margin of the newspaper so much resemble those of the jurors written in his album as to make [illegible] think they are genuine. He believes they are

Want to Let him Down Easy

A leading republican senator predicts the failure of the Sherman funding bill for the reason that the rate of interest is too low to be fastened on the [illegible] whole capital of the country and the present situation as to continued bonds is the best possible one. There is a disposition to let the ex secretary down easily, out of respect to his services in the treasury department

The Sherman Bill Beyond Hope

CHICAGO Jan 30—Washington [illegible] The Sherman funding bill has [illegible] as it is desired to [illegible] the [illegible] on account of his great services. It is certain that [illegible] the increase having rescued the [illegible] time ago. The bill is not very popular and is a risky plan

Pricking a Bubble.

In an article in the International Review J R McBride, formerly Chief Justice of Utah, dissipates the delusion that Salt Lake valley has been transformed from a desert into a fertile country by Mormons

The Judiciary Mormon Bill

The bill prepared by the judiciary committee of the Senate for the suppression of polygamy which will be vigorously pushed to a vote provides that no polygamist shall sit on juries or exercise the right of suffrage or hold office. Cohabitation with more than one woman will be accepted as proof of a polygamous marriage. Another section provides for the appointment of five registrars of election by the president

A Clever Trick for an Office

The Republican says on Friday last the name of Wm Nichols was sent to the senate as postmaster of Norfolk, Va. This renomination of Nichols was not made as an intentional act of the president nor was it known to the postmaster general or first assistant. The president's attention being called to it he was greatly surprised the nomination having unwittingly been signed by him with many others

Question Referred.

WASHINGTON Jan 30—House committee on Indian affairs referred the question of the St Louis and San Francisco railroad right of way through Indian territory to a sub-committee to report upon hereafter to a full committee

Senator Edmunds' Aspirations.

Senator Morrill expresses the opinion that Senator Edmunds would not go on the supreme bench if he had an opportunity as he declined a place upon it once before. Many think otherwise

Dakota's Admission.

It is stated with much positiveness that President Davis of the senate favors the admission of Dakota into the union. He thinks it is said, the southern portion of Dakota is entitled by reason of population and other considerations to admission and that it is not a question for partisan consideration. Judge Davis' vote combined with that of the republicans, would give the bill a majority, and as republicans control the house, it would appear that the measure has a good prospect of becoming a law the present session

Dakota's Delegation at Washington.

A delegation from southwestern Dakota and the Black Hills headed by Representative Pettigrew, had an interview with the president to-day in reference to the admission and division of that territory. It is understood that they also urged the removal of Gov Ordway

McDonald's March to Mexico.

WASHINGTON, Jan 30—The war department has received official information concerning the arrest and imprisonment of Lieut D N McDonald and scouts at Ascension, Mexico, by order of Mexican troops from which it appears that McDonald's action in crossing the frontier was unauthorized, and that he was ordered back by Col McKenzie. Both Col McKenzie and Gen Pope commanding the department of the Missouri, say McDonald is a brave officer, and that he did not intentionally violate the order not to cross the border. The chief scout of McDonald's command says he was on the trail and went into Ascension to buy forage for his people. All treated them well and gave them entertainment. During the night they were surrounded by Mexican troops who insisted upon disarming the Indians. This McDonald complied with, after which the Mexicans disarmed the Americans. Next day they were taken as prisoners to Janos and staid there two days. They were then taken to Casa Grande, and were there four days when orders came for the release of the whole party and directing that all their arms and ammunition, supplies and animals be returned, and if anything was not returned it should be paid for when the party left Janos. The Mexican officer who made the arrest at Ascension was reported under arrest. McDonald is on the way to Washington and will be in on the 21st or 22d but the men's moccasins are badly worn and they travel slow

Northwest Postal Changes.

WASHINGTON, Jan 30—The following changes were made during the week ending January 28th. Established—Trent, Lane county, Or, Dr W Bridges P M; Pullman, Whitman county, W T, Orville Stewart P M; Fort Steilacoom Pierce county W T Eliza C Winsor P M. ## BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

The Search for DeLong.

ST PETERSBURG, Jan 30—Engineer Melville, of the arctic steamer Jeannette has gone to the mouth of the river Lena to search for DeLong. Two Russian officials accompany him to organize the search party. Lieut Danenhauer and party are expected at Irkutsk

A New Tariff Treaty Wanted

NEW YORK Jan 30—Herald's Madrid: Several Madrid papers are pressing Senor Sagasta to push forward diplomatic negotiations in Washington to obtain tariff concessions on imports not only of Cuba but of Spain as the latest statistics show that the importation of dominion goods is steadily increasing in the Spanish dominions. The same papers clamor for a copyright treaty with America also

Financial Matters Mixed.

NEW YORK, Jan 30—The Post says private cables state the Union Generale of Paris has stopped payment and that the Bank of Belgium has advanced the rate of discount from 7 to 9 per cent. This, together with the belief in some quarters that gold exports are imminent depressed the stock market and sent prices downward

CANADA.

BLAINE'S DENIAL

He Declares All Instructions Sent to the South American Emissaries were Known to the President

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN

WASHINGTON Jan 30—In [illegible] an interview with ex Secretary Blaine [illegible] diplomatic [illegible] Peru. The secretary says [illegible] that his instructions to Mr Trescott [illegible] ratified and committed [illegible] with the knowledge of the president he [illegible] in truth. The instructions were not only talked over fully with the president but when written were twice read to him for criticism and change. I have the original draft in my possession with modifications desired by the president clearly noted. It is inconceivable that an extraordinary mission important enough to be mentioned in the annual message to congress could be allowed to leave the country with the president knowing the instructions [illegible] which it should be governed. A friend of the president could possibly make that suggestion and in his behalf I reply that the president specifically referred in his message to the instructions given to Mr Trescott. Besides what possible interest could I have myself in sending any instruction without the full knowledge of the president. I was to leave the department in a fortnight and I would naturally take care not to send any instruction merely to have it revoked. In addition to all other considerations I had no desire to send Mr Trescott on a fool's errand.

How do you account for this change of policy?

That is none of my business. It is the undoubted right of the President as it is of a private citizen, to change his mind. Either President Garfield or President Arthur saw every dispatch of importance that was sent and no dispatch was sent without the full concurrence and approval of the executive. During the late President's illness no dispatch of any special moment was sent either to Peru or Chili. The dates will show that I have had no reason to change my mind as to the wisdom of the course marked out. Time, reflection and the development of events have all the more strongly confirmed me and I fear that one result of the change will be the utter destruction of the commercial interests of the United States in the South Pacific coast

The ex secretary was asked what he meant by the expression "a fool's errand" and he answered

I meant there seems no possible need of Mr Trescott's being in Chili if he is simply there to be a helpless witness of the utter spoliation of Peru, that could have taken place without the presence of a special envoy. What I mean by spoliation appears plainly from Trescott's original dispatch published in the Saturday morning papers. He says "Chili demands the absolute cession of the entire province of Tarapaca and besides that $20,000,000 in money payable in sixteen years during which time Arica is to be occupied by Chili and if the $20,000,000 is not paid Arica to be absolutely annexed to Chili. Besides all this Chili appropriates the guano deposits of the Lobos islands." Mr Trescott adds that if Peru refuses these conditions Chili will then decline further mediation of the United States. In other words, Chili is willing and glad to accept the mediation of the United States, if that mediation can be used to induce Peru to submit quietly to destruction but if the United States special envoy cannot be used to that end Chili will have no more to do with him, and he can pack up and come home in the meek and lowly frame of mind that would befit such a returning journey. The demand of Chili is equivalent to the destruction of Peru, for the reason that it takes from the latter country the great body of her guano and all her nitrate beds and thus deprives her of her sources of revenue. What Chili is taking from Peru is relatively a far greater loss to Peru than the loss of the eleven seceding states would have been to the American union and far greater than that greater indeed than if the Pacific coast had joined the rebellion and gone out forever. That would have taken all the cotton lands, all the sugar lands and all the precious mineral lands from the United States and would have destroyed our power and our very existence. Precisely that fate is to be inflicted on Peru and Chili now permits the United States to mediate only on condition that she will promote this wholesale destruction of a sister republic a destruction as complete and as cruel as the partition of Poland

Anxiety over Trescott's Instructions.

A Washington special says: Still much concern is felt by the president and secretary of state over the immediate result of Trescott's action in South America. Up to yesterday no replies had been received from him acknowledging the receipt of two telegrams of January 2d and 4th which were dispatched by way of Europe and which were designed to show him that a complete change of policy had been adopted by the president. These telegrams were sent as most urgent matter and every precaution taken to insure their prompt forwarding and delivery. The days succeeding, sending these telegrams were days of grave anxiety, and at the end of the fourth no reply having been received the secretary of state sought a personal interview with the Chilian minister here to impress upon him in informal talk that the president had no policy in regard to pending troubles between Chili and Peru beyond a desire to exercise his good offices impartially and in the most friendly spirit toward both nations, solely for purpose of bringing about peace. The president and secretary state that after carefully examining the instructions to Trescott, they were impressed with the belief that if they were delivered as written we were on the threshold of war with Chili. They further believed that only by prompt and decided action could trouble be avoided. Their frank conference with the Chilian minister was for the purpose of adding greater certainty to the desired avoidance of the first stage of trouble. The greatest anxiety is now that Trescott, before he receives the new advices sent him, may have complied with the first instructions which will lead to an open rupture of diplomatic relations. The serious results of such a misfortune have been in some degree escaped and it is believed that by the wide publication of this government's real motive or purpose, as shown by the recent instructions and by the conference with the Chilian minister at which a good understanding was reached the president would in any event have made known his change in policy but it was felt that it would be much less embarrassing to announce it before trouble had actually arisen and became publicly known. It is not yet certain that difficulties have not already arisen, as those portions of Trescott's last dispatch not fully deciphered are of a character to create much uneasiness, and there will be great relief here when it becomes officially known that Trescott has received and begun to act under his new instructions

A Grant Paper on Blaine.

NEW YORK Jan 30—Times editorial: If Blaine would restrain his ingenuity a little and give candor and understanding freer play he might make more convincing statements in defense of his mismanagement of our relations with Chili and Peru. He will be readily acquitted of intent to deceive the president or of acting without his knowledge, if that had been charged against him but on all important counts of the arraignment he fails to clear himself. How can it serve his purpose to show that Chili intends the utter spoliation of Peru even when the treaty gives Arica as collateral security and Lobos islands are a part of the permanent indemnity, and say nothing about the important fact that a large part of the territory proposed to be taken from Peru and Bolivia has been settled and developed chiefly by Chilians and is essentially Chilian already. Why does he not go further and quote from Fish's instructions and show that in Sept 1873 our minister at Lima was instructed to take no further action concerning the Peruvian claims. His views on the extinguishment of our commercial interests in the South Pacific through the "ceaseless activity of England are based on the idea that the growth or dwindling of our foreign trade is an affair to be decided within the four walls of a cabinet minister's office. Nothing that he has said will alter the sober opinion of the country which has already heartily approved the course of Frelinghuysen in instantly revoking Blaine's instructions to Trescott

Blaine too Enterprising

NEW YORK Jan 30—The Herald thinks Blaine's explanation will strike the country that he was entirely too enterprising, either for his own reputation as a statesman or for the good of the country

More Trouble for Blaine

Herald's Washington: It is probable more correspondence in the state department will be called for by congress at once. It relates to Blaine's interference in the boundary dispute between Mexico and Guatemala in which it seems he has peremptorily [illegible] a course in trying to force himself in as an arbitrator as he did in the case of Chili and Peru. The boundary case had been in dispute more than fifty years. Blaine's method of encouraging commerce by beating our neighbors over the head with a stick is original. He appears to have determined that nothing should go on in North or South America without his permission

SAN FRANCISCO Jan 30—The British ship Cochin which arrived here yesterday from [illegible] brought seven men who were picked up at sea [illegible]. The men belonged to the British ship Milton bound from Newcastle England to San Francisco with a cargo of coal. At [illegible] the 21st December smoke was discovered coming through the after hatch and it was soon [illegible] the vessel was on fire. The master [illegible] until [illegible] the fire spread and officers and crew were forced to abandon the vessel. They stayed by her for nearly a day after taking to the boats. The first boat contained the captain his wife children and five sailors, second boat first officer and seven men, and the third boat the second officer and five men. After abandoning the vessel the 3 boats separated. On the 1st of January the third boat containing the second officer and five of the crew was picked up by the Cochin bound for San Francisco. Nothing since has been seen or heard of the other two boats and strong fears are entertained that all have been lost. Those picked up report having suffered great hardships from thirst and hunger and were too weak to stand alone when rescued. They had lived for days on only a few dry biscuits and for three days before being picked up had drank nothing but salt water and kerosene oil. On the day following the desertion of the Milton they had separated from the other boats

RUMORED RAILROAD ARRANGEMENT.

Talk of a Combination in Montana.

[Helena Herald Jan 19]

There are whispers in the air of arrangements between the Union Pacific and Northern Pacific managements of considerable importance to each. It is known that recent conferences have been held in New York, and that the railroad projects of the two companies in Montana were considered at length and with some minuteness of detail. A comparison of notes is said to have brought about a pretty full consideration of conflicting interests and a friendly agreement to pool some of their more sharply defined issues. We may conjecture from the rumors afloat that propositions submitted and acted on take something of this complexion

1 The Northern Pacific to withdraw from its projected Butte branch

2 The Utah & Northern to extend its West Side branch from Silver Bow to the Little Blackfoot and stop

3 The Utah & Northern to extend its trunk line from Dillon north to the Three Forks and stop

4 The Northern Pacific to be supplied, this year over the narrow gauge with iron for 180 miles of track (more or less as required) delivery at the Little Blackfoot to commence May 1st, and at Three Forks September 1st at rates agreed upon

If carried into effect this arrangement comprehends a separation or division of territory between the two great corporations in Montana. Not only that but it contemplates the completion substantially of the Northern Pacific across the continent in 1882. The Union Pacific system, tapping the Northern Pacific at right angles at two distinct points, west and east of the main range secures not only an immediate and large through traffic or freight carriage, but other and lasting benefits arranged for on a basis of mutual interests. The paralleling of lines most sought to be avoided will if things are as they seem be obviated and competition in some of its material aspects, will in consequence be avoided. In brief this is the situation as we view it at this writing. We do not consider now the effect of such arrangements upon Montana allowing that they have been or are to be consummated as indicated. If carried out we simply suggest the possibility of seeing a Northern Pacific palace train steaming into Helena before January 1st next

An Historical Parallel

Sacramento Record Union

It appears to us that Scoville is very unfortunate in his appeals to history. On Thursday he observed in the course of his speech: "You cannot find an instance in history, you cannot suppose a case where a man of forty years of age who has never before committed a crime who has never been associated with criminals or bad people but who on the contrary has actually sought society not only of the better class of people but of Christian people—you cannot conceive of such a man committing such a crime without a motive." Mr Scoville didn't ransack history much before making these rash assertions. As to the case of a man over 40 and who had previously associated with Christian people by preference committing a crime we should have thought the example of Judas Iscariot might have occurred to the counsel for the defense. Nobody can deny his preference for good society and yet we all know what he was capable of. And really we cannot think Guiteau is a better man than Judas was

The True Story of Eugene Aram

New York World Jan 9th

The Rev Robert Collyer preached last evening at the church of the Messiah on the True Story of Eugene Aram. Mr Collyer said that in his boyhood he lived near the scene of Aram's crime and often heard it spoken of. The main interest was in the tracing of the murderer after thirteen years. It had afterwards been revealed to him by the novel of Bulwer who must have been ashamed of having written it before he composed [illegible] and by Hood's poem. Aram had one vice—love of money. He plotted with the other men to obtain goods from tradesmen and to lend the property to one of his accomplices who should disappear. Then he and the other accomplice [illegible] the spoils [illegible] Aram was suspected and he disappeared [illegible] until after thirteen years. His trial was long remembered for the wonderful defense he made. Stripped of the glitter of Bulwer's romance and of Hood's dark fancy there was nothing remarkable about Aram except his selfishness

2d Example: Policy No 58,543, issued Dec. 30 1870. Endowment 20 years. Tontine Period ten years. Amount $10,000 00
Total premiums paid (10 years) 7,530 00

Total premiums paid 2,906 95
In this case the assured withdrew, March 27, 1880 in cash, $3,312 45 being 114 per cent, of premiums paid.
Many policies will be thus paid in 1882, showing

CASH RETURNS OF FROM 100 TO 120 PER CENT. OF THE PREMIUMS PAID.

Assets securely invested of $44,000,000. Surplus, nearly $10,000,000. The Society's popularity is shown by the fact that for the past eleven years the total amount of new policies issued has been greater than that of any other company in existence thus making its average

ANNUAL NEW BUSINESS LARGER THAN THAT OF ANY OTHER COMPANY.

"POINTS" FOR A NEW TRIAL.

Scoville's motion for a new trial for the assassin of President Garfield, with his statement of the "grounds" on which a new trial is demanded, is a most impressive commentary on abuses practiced in the administration of criminal justice. That there should be expectation of getting a new trial on these "grounds" is itself sufficient to put everybody out of all patience with the shabby devices employed by attorneys and countenanced by courts to defeat the ends for which law is ordained. We reprint the whole statement, in order to call attention more closely to the gibberish which surrounds the "practice" employed in the courts to balk justice and shield criminals:

First—By reason of uncertainty in said verdict in that the jury thereby found the defendant guilty, whereas the indictment consists of different count variant from and inconsistent with each other in matters of substance.

Second—That such verdict of the jury does not specify which count or counts of indictment it was founded upon, and several of the counts being materially different from the others, the defendant is not advised by the form or substance of said verdict as to the finding of the jury upon the material facts of death or place of death of deceased.

Third—For that the trial of this cause was commenced at the June term of this court and was not concluded in the same term of court but was extended into the December term without authority of law.

Fourth—For that this court had no jurisdiction of this cause by reason of decease having taken place outside the District of Columbia.

Fifth—For that the court erred in overruling each and all prayers upon questions of law asked by counsel for defense, and in refusing to instruct the jury as requested in each of the fourteen prayers proposed by them.

Sixth—That court erred on trial of this cause in excluding proper evidence offered by defendant as set forth in bill of exceptions.

Seventh—That court erred on trial of this cause in admitting to go to the jury improper evidence on the part of prosecution as shown in bill of exceptions.

Eighth—That court erred in commenting improperly during the trial upon the conduct of the defendant in entering into an arrangement with the district attorney (without knowledge of counsel for defendant), whereby the jury and expert witnesses for prosecution during a portion of the trial might observe certain conduct of defendant, to subserve the purpose of the prosecution, the defense being insanity, without the restraining power of the court being exercised until those purposes were accomplished, to the great prejudice of defendant.

Ninth—Misbehavior of the jury in reading, or having read to them, newspapers calculated to prejudice their minds against defendant, as shown in affidavits of Frederick H. Snyder, George Scoville and John W. Guiteau, filed herewith.

Tenth—By reason of new and material facts, unknown at time of trial, and not ascertainable by reasonable diligence on the part of defendant or his attorney, having come to light since the trial, and shown in affidavit filed herewith.

Eleventh—That the verdict is contrary to the evidence.

Twelfth—That the verdict is contrary to the law of the case.

Now let the careful reader of the above note that this is an uncommon case only by its prominence. The same or like shallow pleas are constantly offered by counsel for criminals, and frequently admitted by judges who worship technicalities for which "precedent" can be cited. Perhaps the prominence of this case and the force of public opinion may cause the court to brush aside all these "points" as irrelevant twaddle; but the confident demand for a new trial on such flimsy pretexts, in a case which has been watched with intense interest by the whole nation, must concentrate attention upon abuses habitually practiced in the administration of law and justice. Mr. Scoville, as a legal esthete, is revolted by a general verdict of guilty, instead of guilty on particular counts; he is convinced that Guiteau is not guilty because the president died in the state of New Jersey; and though there is no question as to the law of murder, nor even a denial that the president came to his death by the hand of Guiteau, Scoville finds the verdict "contrary to the law" and "contrary to the evidence!" Stuff like this has often been allowed to prevail against law and justice. Or, in cases where it does not finally prevail, it is allowed to delay and postpone justice, thus encouraging criminals, adding to the public burdens, exhausting the public patience and making it appear that the law as administered is for protection of crime and not for protection of society against crime.

THE COMMITTEE OF COMMERCE.

In giving Oregon's representative a place on the committee of national commerce, and its chairmanship to a California man, Speaker Keifer greatly favored the commercial interests of the Pacific coast, and it would seem to be but decent courtesy for its business men to make formal expression of approval, particularly in view of the unpleasant talk which these assignments called forth. That California merchants have remained silent has been cited by eastern critics of Mr. Keifer as evidence that the appointment of Page was an unfit one. It is argued that the commercial interests of a section cannot be very great when its merchants fail to appreciate so important a compliment as the chairmanship of the commerce committee; and Keifer is condemned for giving a great trust into disinterested hands. At the next meeting of the Portland board of trade following the congressional committee assignments, appropriate resolutions were unanimously passed; and, we believe, the Astoria chamber of commerce did the same. The press of the state also dealt fairly with the appointments. The San Frrncisco Post of the 21st inst. contrasts this prompt support with the indifference of the chamber of commerce of that city, and reads the chamber a merited rebuke. It says: "It must have struck the ordinary California mind as something odd that the San Francisco chamber of commerce has had a word to say on the subject of the chairmanship of the committee on commerce in the house of representatives. It dealt with a great variety of questions during the past year, some petty, others pitiable; all more or less wanting in direct bearing upon the trade of the city; but when the speaker of the house paid the Pacific slope the compliment of appointing a California delegate chairman of the committee on national commerce, it was dumb. The chamber, all these weeks, hath made no sign. Is it because its members do not consider the subject one which merits any attention, or is it from some less worthy personal motive? Be the cause what it may, the silence of the chamber is not creditable to it as a representative body of San Francisco merchants. The Portland board of trade on the 9th inst. took a very different view of the case, as its resolutions show. It is not yet too late for a similar expression from the various commercial and mercantile organizations of this city. We trust that no fear of newspaper opposition will deter them, more especially as the question affecting the appointing power of committees is before congress, and this coast is bound to sustain Speaker Keifer. We are aware that certain newspapers in this city attempted to belittle Representative Page, but the motive of these attacks is too well known locally to give them any weight."

The St. Paul Pioneer Press, a paper which takes great interest in all things pertaining to the Northern Pacific railroad and is vigilant and vigorous in its efforts against those who are trying to prevent the completion of the undertaking, says: "The authorities of the Northern Pacific are apparently not apprehensive about congressional action in the direction of working a forfeiture of their land grant. They are on the alert to buy in stock if the bears force values down by their stock jobbing sensations."

THE LIFE SAVING SERVICE.

Harper's Monthly for February contains an excellent article on the American life saving service. The importance and splendid achievements of the service are contrasted with the neglect of congress to properly maintain it and care for its wants, the evident purpose of the writer, whose name is not given, being to direct the attention of the country to its necessities and merits. The coasts of the United States are more extended than those of any other maritime country on the globe, and are fraught with peculiar dangers to navigators. Those sections of our coast line where the greater number of disasters occur are in the main uninhabited and desolate. Even if the luckless voyagers reach land unaided the chances for life are small on a barren and pathless shore. In years past, thousands who have escaped the perils of the sea have perished wretchedly on the American Atlantic coast. In 1847, $5000 was appropriated by congress toward furnishing lighthouses on the eastern coast with facilities for aiding shipwrecked mariners, and the money was expended upon Cape Cod. This was a merely casual appropriation and can hardly be looked upon as the start of the life saving service.

In the summer of 1848 Hon. William A. Newell, the present governor of Washington territory, then a member of the house of representatives from New Jersey, incited by some terrible shipwrecks on the coast of that state, induced congress, through his eloquence, to appropriate ten thousand dollars for providing surf boats and other appliances for the protection of life and property from shipwreck on the coast between Sandy Hook and Egg Harbor. During the next season a larger appropriation was obtained, and twenty-two stations were erected on the coast of New Jersey and Long Island, and although no persons were paid or authorized to take charge of them, they were manned in time of need by volunteer crews, and in several cases of shipwreck rendered great service. Congress continued to maintain these unmanned stations until 1854, when a terrible disaster on the Jersey coast, in which three hundred persons perished, shocked the public and resulted in a more liberal appropriation for coast service. A local superintendent was appointed, a keeper assigned to each station and bonded custodians placed in charge of the life boats, which had been repeatedly stolen; but the absence of drilled and disciplined crews, of general regulations and of energetic central administration, checkered the record of the service with the saddest failures.

In 1871 Sumner I Kimball was placed in charge of the revenue marine bureau of the Treasury Department, under charge of which were the life saving stations. A general inspection which he caused to be made showed a dismal state of affairs. The buildings were found to be neglected and dilapidated, the apparatus rusty or broken, portable articles had been carried off, the salaried keepers were often living at a distance from their posts, some of them were too old for service, others were incompetent, and the volunteer crews were in a quarrelsome temper with each other and with the coast population. Mr. Kimball brought to the reorganization of the service an intelligent and enthusiastic interest. It was not the work of a day, nor of a year. It required the highest faculties of system and control. Mr. Kimball originated the idea of guarding the entire coast of the nation. He put the slender resources of the service, as he found it, in the most efficient shape, and in 1874 secured passage for a bill for its extension. Increased appropriations were also secured.

The life saving stations on the Atlantic sea board are now within an average distance of five miles of each other, each crew consisting of a keeper and six surfmen. At sunset two men start from each station, one going to the right and the other to the left. They are equipped with lanterns and Coston signals and each pursues his lone and perilous way in spite of tides, wind and cold until he meets a man from the next station with whom he exchanges a check to prove to his captain on his return that he has faithfully performed his task. Four patrols are sent out each night so that a patrol passes any given point eight times each night. Every foot of coast from Maine to Florida is thus tramped and retramped each night during the storm months of the year. The crews of the stations are selected with the greatest care, efficiency being the only consideration in their engagement. Keepers receive $400 per year and surfmen $40 per month during the active season, from September 1st to May 1st. The system of inspection is very complete, so that the service is well in hand. Each station is supplied with boats, guns for casting lines to vessels off shore and all appliances which can be used in its work, and the crews are drilled daily in their use.

To recount the heroic deeds of this service, would be to recite a familiar tale. In no single instance has a crew failed to do its work bravely. They save thousands of lives each year. Congress will be asked to appropriate more money for the care of persons after rescue, to pay the service better, to pension men disabled and provide for the families of those who are killed in the service.

"DIVINE RIGHT" IN GERMANY.

In spite of the "rescript" recently issued by the emperor of Germany defining his personal powers and asserting in absolute fashion his independence of ministers and parliament, it is evident that the latter does not intend to surrender all its privileges. Herr Deitz, a socialistic member from Stuttgart, was imprisoned recently by Bismarck for circulating prohibited publications. The matter was brought to the attention of his fellow-members. They at once ordered his release from imprisonment. The feeling was so strong that there was no opposition to the order, even the government members voting for it. The vote does not imply any sympathy with socialism; but shows that the members were bound to record themselves as against arbitrary measures that affect their safety and independence. At the close of the last French war, Bismarck had immense popularity. Now, his unpopularity is extreme. As an agent of despotism he is hated intensely, and were he not near the end of his mortal life, the principle of absolutism which he so ardently supports might bring him to the fate which Strafford met. The late "rescript" was in effect a notice to the people of Germany, that the Emperor intended to rule without parliament, that the people must not question his policy or methods, and that the press would not be permitted the right of discussion and criticism. This is substantially, the doctrine that led Charles of England to the block and drove James, his descendant, from the throne. The Allgemeine Zeitung, the leading organ of German public opinion, declared that the "rescript" was an announcement that the Emperor meant to revolutionize the government and change it from a constitutional monarchy to a despotism. Bismarck at once made the journal's statements good by placing its editor under arrest. There is dynamite under proceedings of this kind, that will one day blow the German monarchy to the moon.

Sargent, who has been named as certain of the appointment to the interior department every week for two months, hasn't obtained it yet. There seems to be a friction in the drawing of the prizes in the "lottery of assassination."

Rev. Henry W. Bellows, one of the most widely known of Unitarian pastors, died at New York yesterday. He was pastor of All Souls church in that city, a position he had held since 1838. Dr. Bellows was a preacher of great eloquence, popular in the lecture field and had spoken and written much on the prominent social and philanthropical subjects of the day. During the war of the rebellion he filled the important position of head of the United States Sanitary Commission. In 1864 he supplied for a time the pulpit of his deceased friend Starr King at San Francisco. At the time of his death Dr. Bellows was in his 68th year, having been born at Boston, Mass., June 11, 1814.

In reply to criticisms on Mr. Blaine for his dispatches on South American affairs, it is shown that in every instance the dispatches had the approval of President Garfield or President Arthur. The later ones, for which he is most criticised, are shown to have passed under President Arthur's supervision and to have received his commendations. It is difficult therefore to see why, if the dispatches are faulty, Mr. Blaine should be censured therefor. But in fact they are neither faulty nor objectionable. There is great outcry about them all for nothing. It is a political crusade against Blaine. That and nothing more.

The Boston Post, a democratic paper says: The fragment of an administration which President Garfield gave us can be safely left for history to take care of. History will treat it much more justly than the men who have been wrangling over the issues raised by it.

ANOTHER GOLD WATCH GIVEN AWAY.

NEW SERIAL STORY BY MRS. DUNIWAY.

READ CAREFULLY.

The publishers of the NEW NORTHWEST will begin, on THURSDAY, MARCH 2 1882, the publication of a NEW SERIAL STORY, entitled

"THE MYSTERY OF CASTLE ROCK,"

A STORY OF THE PACIFIC NORTHWEST,

BY ABIGAIL SCOTT DUNIWAY,

And continue its publication from week to week for a period of six months. The serial is one of Mrs. Duniway's best literary efforts. It is powerfully written, embellished by vivid descriptions of natural scenery, accompanied by life-like delineations of character, and marked by deep analysis of the strongest phases of human nature, the whole connected by a deep and thrilling plot that will hold the reader's attention to the end. Its moral, "Be sure your sin will find you out," will find a ready response in all upright minds, while its happy sequel will not fail to please and satisfy them.

THE PRIZE WATCH FOR SUBSCRIPTIONS.

We will give an ELEGANT AMERICAN HUNTING-CASE SOLID GOLD WATCH (Elgin make) as a PRIZE to the man or woman, boy or girl, who will bring or send, on or before the evening of March 1, 1882, the greatest number of new subscriptions, accompanied by the cash. In addition to this liberal offer, we will pay a commission of 20 per cent. on all new subscriptions, thus paying all canvassers for their work. But the successful competitor for the watch will be allowed no commission, as the prize will be his or her compensation. The rates for the paper are $3 00 or $1.50 for six months. Two six months' subscriptions will count for the prize as one yearly subscription.

TWO WATCHES OF ABOUT EQUAL VALUE,

A Lady's and a Gentleman's, are on exhibition in the window of J. VAN BEURDEN, the well known jeweler at No. 107 First street. He will take pleasure in showing them to any and all interested. Inspection is solicited. They are both handsome and valuable time-pieces, and are warranted as represented by Mr. Van Buerden. The winner can select either watch.

THE FIRST CHAPTER OF "THE MYSTERY OF CASTLE ROCK"

Will be ready next Monday, Jan. 30th, in the form of a printed circular and all who desire to canvass should either call or send to the publication office, No. 5 Washington street, up stairs, for both circulars and sample copies of the NEW NORTHWEST, which will be furnished free at any time after that date. Those who compete may send names and money as fast as received, retaining the commission, which the person who wins the watch will be required to forward when the result is published in the city press of March 2d. All subscriptions must be sent in by 5 o'clock P. M. on March 1st, and under no circumstances will there be an extension of time. Remember, that the first watch we offered (in September last) was secured by a lad who brought in but thirteen yearly and six semi-yearly subscribers.

It costs nothing to try for this watch; and even if you do not secure it, you get paid for your work. Send for circular and samples and try for it.

DUNIWAY PUBLISHING COMPANY,

No. 5 Washington street, Portland, Or.

THE O. R. & N. CO'S DEPOT.

A Magnificent Building, to cost $1,500,000, to be built.

A special dispatch to THE OREGONIAN from San Francisco last night states that Mr. Chas. F. McKim, a prominent architect who visited Oregon last fall as a member of the railroad party, left for Portland on the steamship Columbia on the 29th inst. Mr. McKim is in the employ of the O. R. & N. Co., and comes to Portland for the purpose of superintending the construction of their immense depot, the plans and specifications for which are in his possession. The depot is to be 600 by 600 feet in size, and will cost about $1,500,000. The site of the depot will be selected immediately after his arrival.

BRIEF MENTION.

The Columbia due to-night.

Put your skates back—no ice this week.

Thin ice was reported yesterday between the mouth of the Willamette and St. Helens.

The freeze up does not interfere with trains east of The Dalles, which continue on schedule time.

Mr. George H. Johnson, the company's efficient agent at the Cascades, is in the city, and will try to get home to-day.

Charley Strong, who was missed from his home in East Portland for several days, has been found and returned to the family.

The State dropped down below St. Helens at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Her passengers were taken down by the S. G. Reed.

"Prof." Robt. Allen, a pedestrian from San Francisco, and young Sheridan, are in town making arrangements for a "tournament."

OLYMPIA NEWS.

[REGULAR CORRESPONDENCE OF THE OREGONIAN.]

OLYMPIA, Jan. 28.

Coasting and sleighing have been the rage for the past few days.

Largely attended revivals are in progress in the M. E. church here.

Several wagon loads of immigrants have arrived here during the past week, and others are reported on the way.

The report that the body of the German Dickgeaster was found, is untrue, but parties are still searching for it.

C. B. Bagley, Esq., deputy collector of internal revenue, and editor of the Courier, together with his wife and daughter, will leave for San Francisco next week for a visit.

The funeral of Helen W., second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Mann, took place to-day and was attended by a large number of the friends of the family, a deputation of the order of A. O. U. W. acting as pall bearers.

Mr. J. C. Chapman who died recently at Downey City, Cal., was formerly a resident of this territory where he leaves several married children. He took an active part in the Black Hawk and Mexican wars, and arrived in California during the gold excitement of '49.

The following officers of Tacoma lodge No. 4, I. O. G. T. were elected for the ensuing term, last evening: W. H. Roberts, W. C. T.; Mrs. J. Chilberg, W. V. T.; J. Chilberg, W. Sec.; Miss Mina Elson, W. Treas.; W. Foster, M.; J. B. Shelton, Chaplain; Miss Kate Pierce, I. G.; N. P. Cofey, O. G.

The weather up to the present has been comparatively mild, the thermometer never having been lower than 24° above. This in itself should be an inducement to those who appreciate mild winters to visit our shores, as this country is certainly to be preferred to New York with its 40° below zero.

The strange course taken by the late legislature in refusing to pass the pilot bill, and even going so far out of their way as to repeal the old pilot law, is the subject of general comment and is likely to be very damaging to our commercial interests in the future. That it was meant to throw good American money into the hands of British Columbia seems now a foregone conclusion, and those who refused to pass a good law on the subject will be well remembered before the next election.

MILDER WEATHER YESTERDAY,

AND WARM RAINS IN PORTLAND FROM THE SOUTH.

Heavy Snow East of the Cascades and the River Still Blocked—No Likelihood of Getting Through To-Day, or To-Morrow.

The Wide West left Ainsworth dock on time yesterday morning, and eat her way through the ice to Vancouver. It looked there as though it was impossible to proceed, so Captain Wolf returned to Portland. Passengers from The Dalles were taken on the cars below Crates' point, where the Harvest Queen lay, and went aboard, but the steamer could make no headway, the ice cutting through her heavy sheathing. The passengers returned to The Dalles.

Morning reports showed cloudy weather, cessation of the strong east wind and higher thermometer all along the line. Heavy snow fell at the Cascades, Shell Rock and The Dalles. This had a tendency to make matters still worse, as snow does not melt in the river, but forms slush ice. At 5 P. M. the operator at Rooster Rock telegraphed that the river looked blocked at Cape Horn. A rise of four inches at the Cascades, reported at the same hour, shows this inference to be correct. East of The Dalles, all the way to Riparia (the new name for South Texas) the weather was much milder. At 5 P. M. six or seven inches of snow had fallen at The Dalles, and somewhat more at the Cascades. The Wide West will leave as usual this morning, but will not, in all probability, get through.

It should be remembered that all calculations and predictions concerning the weather are made upon reports received at 5 P. M., thirteen to fifteen hours before THE OREGONIAN reaches the two or three thousand breakfast tables in Portland, and the "Freeze Up" editor is not responsible for intermediate changes. When he left the office yesterday morning at 2 o'clock, he went to his room, and with glycerine (the only substance resembling oil in his bachelor apartments) and an old sock, rubbed the rust from a pair of $6 50 club skates, confidently expecting to enjoy a nearly forgotten sport on Couch's lake in the afternoon. Imagine his surprise and chagrin to be awakened at eleven o'clock in the morning with rain! His prediction at this writing, based on the probability of continued warm rains, milder weather east of the mountains, and speculations indulged in by the superintendent and assistant superintendent of the river division of the O. R. & N. Co., to say nothing of the opinions of several "oldest inhabitants," is that the river will be open for passengers and mails by Friday morning, subject of course to such amendments as the weather clerk offers.

Following are the 5 P. M. bulletins:

Some time ago, Messrs Hodge, Davis & Co., of this city, read in a Massachusetts paper that Hon. Charles R. Ladd, auditor of that state, was afflicted with an incurable kidney disease, and had been obliged to give up work and return to his home. They immediately sent him a box of their celebrated Oregon Kidney Tea, and from time to time sent him other boxes. A few days ago they received from him the following letter:

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS,
Auditor's Dep't, Boston, Nov. 11, 1881.

Messrs. Hodge Davis & Co: DEAR SIRS—I have no hesitation in saying that I have been much benefited by the use of the Oregon Kidney Tea as a remedy for a kidney difficulty which has troubled me for six or eight years. I can heartily recommend it to those who are similarly afflicted, as a safe and agreeable remedy. I shall test its virtues further, for I have great faith in it as a specific for many diseases of the kidneys. Respectfully yours,

CHAS. R. LADD.

The original of this letter can be seen by calling on Messrs. Hodge Davis & Co., Portland, Oregon, and the Oregon Kidney Tea can be bought of any druggist or dealer, in Oregon or Washington. Price $1 per box.

The McMinnville public school has an attendance of [illegible] pupils.

A [illegible] of the order of Chosen Friends was instituted at [illegible].

[illegible] W. [illegible] died at his home in [illegible] on the 2d of January, aged 73 years.

Fifty [illegible] acres of the [illegible] land claim [illegible] Dallas, was sold last week to Sam Coad, [illegible].

The protracted meeting at McMinnville has closed. Eleven accessions to the church was the result of the meetings.

A. S. Mair & Son have received the contract for building the bridges, trestle and [illegible] work on the first twenty miles of the O. & C. railroad south of [illegible]. The contract is to be completed by June 1st, 1882. About 2,000,000 feet of lumber will be used in the work.

The new church edifice at North Yamhill was dedicated on Sunday last under the title of Union Church, a minister each of the Methodist, Christian, Baptist and Presbyterian denominations joining in the ceremonies. The affair proved a very pleasant one.

John Findley of Yamhill county had the misfortune to lose a valuable horse a few days ago. His son was riding the animal through the field after some cattle, and while running briskly its fore feet went into a hole and it fell, breaking the bones of its limbs literally to pieces and wounding it so badly that death was the only relief for its misery and it was shot. The boy escaped unhurt.

Some excitement has been caused in Eugene recently by the report that a rich silver quartz lode had been discovered within two miles of the city. The prospecting is being done by men in the employ of M. M. Ellis, L. M. Hall, A. Stahl, T. G. Hendricks, S. P. Bewell and Judge Trust, all residents of Dallas, Polk county. The prospectors report that they have not yet found the regular lode but find spurs and pockets that lead them to believe that they are near it. The ore is composed of silver and copper and is exceedingly rich and heavy, an assay showing over $2000 to the ton. The mine is situated on the Breeding donation claim, part of which was lately purchased of James Humphrey for $2100.

A. S. Powers, subcontractor on the mail route from Eugene City to Eastern Oregon by the McKenzie route, has been summoned to appear in Washington by the 12th of February as a witness in the star route cases. Miner, Peck & Co. took the contract on this route for a weekly mail at about $3400 a year, and had it changed to daily and the price increased to $21,000. The first subcontractor under them failed, and then Mr. Powers took the contract of them. The service has been reduced to once a week, and Mr. Powers is the sub-contractor. Several witnesses living east of the mountains have also been subpenaed to go to Washington. Mr. Powers expects to go by the Southern Pacific railroad and return by the Central Pacific.

Washington Territory.

Cheney boasts of a thoroughly graded school of 120 pupils.

Three-fourths of the children of the Dayton school district attend the public school.

T. S. Russell, who died on the 25th at Seattle, had been a resident of that city since 1853.

Two car loads of broom corn were shipped from Dayton last week. Freight on this article has been reduced from $3 80 to 95 cents per hundred.

Five hundred breech loading Springfield rifles and a supply of cartridges have just arrived in Olympia, in charge of Gov. Newell, from the Vancouver arsenal.

J. C. Chapman, father of Mrs. Thomas Tallentire, of Olympia, and himself formerly a resident of that place, died at Downieville, Los Angeles county, Cal., December 29, 1881, aged 73 years.

The Cheney academy is receiving its finishing touches. It is plastered throughout, well painted and grained, and will be seated with the patent single seats. It is said to be the finest building in Eastern Washington, if not in the territory.

Geo. Gelbach, of Tumwater, has just bought over 300 tons of wheat and oats in the southern part of Thurston county and in Lewis county. He says there are still large quantities of grain in the hands of the farmers in the same section of country.

Moore & Horan of Skagit are putting in a pole road at their logging camp. It will be a mile and a half long, and will reach a body of 13,000,000 feet of timber. The cars on this road will be hauled by horses, or teams doing the work on skidded roads in the woods.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Washington colony, held at their usual place of meeting in the vicinity of Olympia, January 3, 1882, the following directors were elected: J. L. Brown, S. Y. Bennett, Wm. Hammil, J. M. Jeffers, G. H. Whitney, John Porodice, A. Sloops, A. L. Willis, S. H. Brown, A. C. Willey and R. Pebely, and at a subsequent meeting of the board the following officers were chosen: J. L. Brown, president; A. L. Willis, vice president; A. C. Willey, secretary; Wm. Hammil, treasurer; G. H. Whitney, general manager; S. H. Brown, military captain.

The Washington colony from Kansas, at Whatcom, are getting along finely. Twenty-four of the members are settled in the town, and more are coming continually. Thirteen claims have been taken in the vicinity within a month past. The timbers are being prepared for the erection of a large mill at the mouth of the creek, which will furnish the power for operating the mill, the dimensions of which will be 40 by 200 feet and three stories high. The colonists are happy and hopeful, and so sanguine are they of the ultimate growth and importance of their town that they are now looking for a man to start a paper there.

MINING MATTERS.

Jacksonville Times.

Hannum & Goff of Grave creek made a good run before the thaw, and are busy again.

Some of the miners have plenty of water again and are at work, but others are not so fortunate.

R. Cook of Grave creek has found some rich quartz croppings and is looking for the main ledge.

Gin Lin attempted to force the water through his ditch, which was filled with ice, damaging it considerably.

Hel & Manning of Leland precinct have their ditch completed and will commence active operations at once.

There seems to be more snow than ever on the hills and mountains, which will prolong the season to some extent.

The Sterling Co.'s ditch has been full of ice and Superintendent Ennis has not attempted to run the water into it as yet.

J. [illegible] of Foot's creek was in town last week. He informs us that his brother Alex. is now prospecting for copper in South river valley.

Bybee & Fisher's ditch to the big bar of Rogue river has been completed and work on the bar will be commenced as soon as the weather moderates.

Mr. McNevin, who with ex-Governor Chadwick spent some time in this section examining our quartz interests, is now engaged in superintending a mine in Shasta county, Cal., and is also exporting.

Andrew McKee and Sheppard Bros. are engaged in mining a short distance from Major Barron's place, with flattering results. They cleaned up over $17 worth of beautiful gold after a run of about two days.

G. R. Justice and wife of Foot's creek were in town this week. George, who is now engaged in mining, says that most of the miners of that camp are busy since the late thaw and there will be unusual activity there in case of plenty of water, as several miners have fitted up their claims in a better and on a more extensive scale than ever.

Many of the miners have been able to do some work since the thaw and rain of this week, though a few of the nights have been cold and were accompanied by a frost that served to make water scarce again the forepart of the day. Altogether the mining season has not been a favorable one thus far, though it is not too late yet for a great change for the better.

THE INDEPENDENCE POSTOFFICE AFFAIR.

Postal Agent Simpson's Statement of the Case.

Postal Inspector Simpson has offered a statement on the "investigation" at Independence, which we are requested to publish. Inasmuch as we published a letter on the subject from there some two or three weeks since, in which his action was somewhat criticised, we feel bound to give him a hearing. It is proper to say, however, that this paper has not hitherto given any real attention to the matter in dispute; it has not attempted to follow the statements and counter statements published here and at Independence, nor has it accused Mr. Simpson of remissness or partiality. The present statement by him is the only one in relation to the whole matter that we have carefully read. From it we easily gather enough to make the whole case entirely clear. Brushing aside all irrelevant matter, it is made plain by the testimony presented by Mr. Simpson that the origin of the controversy was a mistake made in the postoffice at Independence. A package of papers addressed to that office was delivered to J. W. Vaughn, instead of being distributed to subscribers. The mistake plainly arose from the fact that the name of a subscriber written on a paper under the wrapper was seen through it—the name being that of Mrs. Vaughn. Mr Simpson finds that the postmaster made this mistake; the postmaster himself, in his testimony as given by Mr. Simpson, virtually admits it, and the testimony of the deputy postmaster at Portland, who could not see why the package had been returned to the Portland office, confirms it. Admission of this fact in the first place was all that could have been necessary to explain the matter and satisfy all complaint. Had this been promptly done nothing more had been needed. Mr. Simpson's statement is as follows:

PORTLAND, Oregon, Jan. 25, 1882.

To the Public: Referring to the late unfortunate difficulty growing out of an investigation of charges preferred by the Duniway Publishing Co. against the postmaster at Independence, Polk county, Oregon, I will say that some time last spring the Duniway Publishing Company informed me that the postmaster at Independence, Polk county, Oregon, had delivered to an individual a package of papers sent to him to be delivered to the patrons of her paper, or their paper. As soon as possible, after being informed of the supposed irregularity, I addressed the following letter to the postmaster:

PORTLAND, Oregon, April 1, 1881.

Sir: Complaint has just been made to me of an irregularity that recently occurred in your office that would seem entirely inexcusable on your part. It appears that a short time ago the publishing company of the New Northwest in the city of Portland, forwarded by mail to your office a package of papers addressed to Independence, Polk county, Oregon, and that when you received the package, instead of opening it and distributing the papers to the persons addressed, as you should have done, you delivered the whole package to a person whose name did not appear upon the wrapper. You will please inform this office immediately of the cause of such irregularity, and return this letter with your reply. Very respectfully, BEN SIMPSON,

P. M. at Independence, P. O. Inspector.

Polk county, Ogn,

In reply to this letter, Mr. Hodgin, the postmaster, said: "The package of papers referred to by you was received at this office, plainly addressed to Mrs. Ida H. Vaughn, and I put the package in her husband's postoffice box, and it was taken to him by a carrier." A short time after receiving this reply from the postmaster, one of the Messrs. Duniway called upon me in my office and I informed him of what the postmaster had said, (I think I read the letter to him) and he (Mr. Duniway) said that the package was not addressed as the postmaster said, but that it was addressed to Independence, Polk county, Oregon; that there was nothing else on the wrapper, and said that he wanted a further investigation, to which I replied that I would investigate it fully. He said that he wanted to be present, and I think I said to him that I would let him know when I went. About this time the old gentleman brought to my office affidavits made, I believe, by himself and son; to the effect that the package was properly addressed to Independence, Polk county, Oregon, and not to an individual. I would give exactly the language of the affidavits if I had them. I had them, of course, at the late investigation, but in the trial I gave them to counsel for defense, and they informed me that they were handed to Mrs. Duniway. I have not seen them since. I presume, of course, she took them away unthoughtedly, and, after the subject assumed the shape it has, she does not wish to give them to me. Of course, I have not asked for them, knowing that if she had them it was her duty to file them in my office, as they are a part of the case. I called upon defendant's counsel as I gave the papers to them, and they say that Mrs. Duniway has them. I only speak of this incidentally, on account of not being able to give the exact language of the affidavits. I have, however, given the purport of them. Immediately after the affidavits were filed I was ordered in a different direction and could not attend to it. On or about the 29th of September I went under instructions from the postoffice department into Yamhill county for the purpose of examining and reporting on certain star routes in that county, and, having to go to Independence for the purpose of seeing Mr. Cooper, who is well acquainted with the star route service in that county, I considered it proper to see Mr. Hodgin, postmaster, and find if possible the cause of the irregularity referred to. I called upon him in his office and informed him that I had called for the purpose of investigating the charges preferred against him by the Duniway Publishing Company, and asked him to state to me all the circumstances connected with his receiving the package, and as to the manner of address. He went on to explain in the most positive language that the package in question was plainly addressed, as he sincerely believed at the time, to Mrs. Ida H. Vaughn, and that others looked at it and they would say the same thing. I then had a talk with Mr. Vaughn, and he told me that he would swear that the package in question was plainly addressed to his wife, and that he sent it back to the publishing company by express. I asked him why he did that? and he said because he was excited at the time on account of having refused to take the paper, and that Mrs. Duniway had got his wife to take it, and that he supposed she had sent the whole package to his wife simply to aggravate him. I told him that it was unfortunate that the package had been sent by express, as it appeared that there was really where the trouble started; and he gave me to understand that the sending back was done under excitement, but that he would not have had anything to do with the package had he not have been positive at the time that it was addressed to his wife. I then called upon Mr. Poppleton and asked him if he saw the package in question, and he told me that he did, and that he was ready to swear that it was plainly addressed to Mrs. Ida H. Vaughn. I asked him if he might not have been mistaken, and he stated that he could not see how he could have been mistaken, as he had the package in his hands and looked at it carefully. I then called upon different persons along the street, (business men) and inquired of them as to the general standing of Mr. Hodgin, postmaster, and I was told that he was above suspicion, that his character for truth and honesty had never been assailed in that community. I then made up my mind that there had been an honest mistake. I then called upon the postmaster and informed him that I had made up my mind that he was not guilty of intentional wrong in the matter, and that I would so inform the publishing company in Portland. He asked me if I would give him a statement in writing exonerating him, and I told him I did not wish to do that, but for him to go on and attend to his business promptly, and there would be no trouble. I then returned to Portland and supposed that I could satisfy the Duniway Publishing Company that the delivery of the package to Mr. Vaughn had been a mistake, and not intentional; that the name of Mrs. Vaughn had shown so plainly through the wrapper that the postmaster and others had been misled innocently. On my return, however, to Portland, I found that I was charged in the New Northwest of being guilty of conniving with the thieving postmaster. I, of course, felt that it was a great injustice to me, and just after reading the charge in the New Northwest at the Welcome office I saw the two young Duniways walking up the sidewalk on the opposite side of the street and I crossed over and asked them if they were the authors of the article referred to, and they replied that they supposed so, or words to that effect, and I remarked that it was false, and I wanted a retraction. I went on to tell them that I had always been a friend to the family, and there was no reason why I should do them an injustice, even if I was wicked enough to violate my oath of office. They insisted that I promised to let them know when I investigated the charges. I told them that I would have let them know if I had had an opportunity, and I further stated that the investigation was a private one, and that I would allow them a public investigation if they desired, but that I could see no use in it. One of them then remarked that he would see his ma about it. We then separated and I went back to the Welcome office and had a talk with my son William, one of the proprietors of the Sunday Welcome. I said to him that I did not wish him to make any reply to what the New Northwest had said about me; that I was satisfied Mrs. Duniway would correct it. A short time after that I met Mrs. Duniway on a boat between Portland and Kalama, and mentioned to her that a great wrong had been done me in her paper, and that I thought they should retract. She remarked that if they could have a fair public investigation she and her boys would willingly sign a paper exonerating me from blame. She said of course her boys would not see her insulted. I told her that I had sons, too, who did not want to see me wronged. On my return to Portland I addressed a note to the Duniway publishing company, that on a certain day I would hold a public investigation at Independence of charges preferred against the postmaster at that place by the Duniway publishing company, and I received from them, afterwards, a reply that they would like to have it put off for a short time. A short time after receiving the note, young Mr. Duniway and the old Mr. Duniway called at my office and we talked the matter over. I told them at first that I did not see how I could change it as my time was all taken up. The young Mr. Duniway went on to say that it would be a great favor to him if I would change the day. I then told him to set the day himself, and he fixed the third of January. I then notified the postmaster at Independence that I would be there on that day to hold a public examination of the charges preferred against him. On that day I went to Independence and found that everything was ready. A large room had been procured and I found it filled to overflowing, and the parties all ready with their counsel. Mr. Daily, of Dallas, Polk county, appeared for the Duniway Publishing Company, and Messrs. Pipes and Belt appeared for the postmaster. I stated in the opening of the investigation that the object was to hear testimony on the subject of charges preferred by the New Northwest publishing company against postmaster Hodgin, of Independence. I stated in this connection that this was a little out of the regular order of things, to hold public investigations; that I had before investigated this case, but that the publishing company were not satisfied with the result, and I had consented to hold a public investigation, and that while, of course, I expected order, I should not be controlled by technicalities; that I simply wanted to hear all there was in it.

The two Mr. Duniways (the old gentleman and his son) then gave testimony to the effect that the package in question was plainly addressed "Independence, Polk County, Oregon," and that there was no other writing on the wrapper. They also had Mrs. Duniway sworn, who stated that she had cut a list of names from Independence, they being new subscribers to the New Northwest, and directed that they be sent to Independence by return mail.

Mr. Chittenden, assistant postmaster at Portland, Oregon, was also sworn for the prosecution. His testimony you will find made out by himself and his name signed, as follows:

"The package in question was addressed to "Independence, Oregon," or "Independence, Polk County, Oregon," I do not remember which. A name was plain to be seen through the wrapper, being written on the margin of the paper. Am not certain of the name. Am under the impression that the name was "Ford." Then the postmaster's duty was to open and distribute the papers unclaimed in the package. That my attention was called to the package by B. C. Duniway, at the postoffice in Portland, Oregon, and that I wrote upon the wrapper of said package, "Why do you return these?" Signed, Chitt."

On being recalled, said that on hearing the evidence of Poppleton, remember of taking my pencil and drawing a line through the name that appeared under the wrapper, as I thought that the cause of all the trouble. That the name of the lady was plain to read. That it was plainer from the fact that it was written upon white paper with a heavy pen, and that the name of the place was upon brown paper. W. L. CHITTENDEN,

Assistant Postmaster.

This closes the prosecution.

Postmaster Hodgin sworn: When I received the package of papers, I considered the address plain to Ida H. Vaughn, and dropped it into Mr. Vaughn's postoffice box. I would not now swear that I was right, but that was my honest impression at the time, and I acted upon it. I had no feeling against Mrs. Duniway, and, of course, had no desire to do her an injury. When the package was sent back to me from Portland I thought it was a job put up against me, and was very much excited. I took the package and went to Poppleton's store, where Mr. Vaughn was at work, and asked him if he knew anything about it. He said that he did; that he had sent it back to Mrs. Duniway by express. I then hastily tore off the wrapper and distributed the papers to the parties addressed, and was still ignorant of what the real trouble was. After I went home I got to thinking about it, and wondered if I had made a mistake in the first place. The next morning I went back to the store and tried to find the wrapper, but without success. I had received a postal card from Mrs. Duniway, or the publishing company, that caused me to think that I might have made a mistake. When the package was first received I did not know that Mrs. Vaughn was a subscriber for the paper, nor did I until I took the package to Vaughn on its return from Portland.

H. Hirschberg, sworn: Am an employe in Mr. Poppleton's store. I took the package in question from the postoffice to Mr. Vaughn when it first came. I looked at the address and saw that it was plainly addressed to Mrs. Ida H. Vaughn, and I delivered it to her husband at Mr. Poppleton's store, and remarked that there was a big lot of papers for his wife, or words to that effect.

W. P. Connoway sworn: I am deputy postmaster. I was assisting Mr. Hodgin separate the mail at the time that the package involved in this case was last received from Portland. I had it in my hand and examined it. It was plainly addressed to Mrs. Vaugn, and I so remarked as I handed it to Mr. Hodgin.

J. W. Vaughn sworn: Am a clerk in Mr. E. Poppleton's store. The package was brought to me at the store by Mr. Hirschberg, and, seeing that it was addressed to my wife, I took charge of it and sent it back by express to Mrs. Duniway and the publishing company.

E. Poppleton sworn: I am the proprietor of the store where Mr. Vaughn is employed, and was present when Mr. Hirschberg handed him the package of papers. I had that package in my hands and and looked at it, and am positive that it was addressed to Mrs. Ida H. Vaughn. When the package came back from Portland, after its return there by express, I saw that a pencil mark had been drawn across the name of Mrs. Vaughn.

I have now given all the relative testimony in the case. When the testimony was closed Mr. Daley for prosecution, made a short speech and stated that Mrs. Duniway would make the closing speech. Mr. Belt, attorney for postmaster, made a speech, and Mrs. Duniway then closed.

I then stated that I felt it due to the people of Independence that I should pass upon the question involved, so far as it was left to me. I then referred to the testimony, reviewing it as I understood it, and stated I could not see where the postmaster had been guilty of intentional wrong. The first charge being that he was was guilty of a malicious act, I said that nothing of that kind had been attempted to be proven. Mr. Hodgin had sworn that at the time of the transaction he was a good friend of Mrs. Duniway, and would not do her an injury intentionally, and there had been no attempt to contradict what he had said. I then stated that gross carelessness had not been proven from the fact that four other persons had sworn that the package in question was addressed to Mrs. Vaughn. I stated that in my judgment there had been a mistake made, and it was one of those mistakes that was liable to occur at any time, and that I should exonerate the postmaster of any intentional wrong, but in doing it I did not wish to be understood as casting any reflection on the Duniway publishing company, as I was satisfied they had sworn to the truth.

This closed the case. I will now say that there is nothing in the case, so far as the postmaster is concerned. He did nothing more nor less than he should have done, acting under the impression I am satisfied that he did act at the time.

I now have to say in conclusion that I have given a faithful statement of all that I have had to do with the case. I now leave the matter to a generous public to decide whether or not I should be accused of conniving with a corrupt postmaster and a corrupt postal ring, as I am charged in the New Northwest. I have simply given a plain statement of facts so that the public may fully understand what it is about of which so much has been said in the New Northwest and I defy a successful contradiction.

Very respectfully, BEN. SIMPSON,

P. O. Inspector.

A Statement by the Duniway Publishing Company.

Since the above was put in type for this paper—it having previously been printed by the Sunday Welcome—we have been asked to insert the following; and as it is a statement by the Duniway Publishing Company in relation to their side of the case we comply; and with this close our columns to communications on the subject:

PORTLAND, Jan. 30.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The report of the Independence investigation, furnished by Postal Inspector Ben. Simpson, confirms our previous conviction of his unfairness. It is only different from the Welcome's "correspondence from Independence" (which is now confessed to have been concocted here) in that it is devoid of scurrility and slander. The testimony given is materially altered and badly garbled, and that of the prosecution is slurred and almost wholly omitted. The inspector did not have a stenographer present, as he voluntarily promised (we should have employed one but for the promise), and did not even take notes during the trial; yet now, after four weeks have elapsed, and after events have embittered him more than ever against the complainants, he assumes to remember the entire testimony, and to give a full and fair account. But he has passed over nearly every point made by the prosecution. He has overdone the matter in the effort to make our complaint appear ridiculous. Mr. Chittenden has also "doctored" his contradictory testimony as much as it will bear. If THE OREGONIAN could spare the space, we should be glad to point out the many glaring inaccuracies and omissions in the report. On January 5th, two days after the investigation, we published a fresh and full account of the case, from notes carefully taken at the time. The prosecution was not swept away and "lost" proof (the wrapper was "lost," so its evidence could not be met), and we herewith send "those affidavits," which were placed in Mrs. Duniway's care during the investigation, and which have since awaited the inspector's order. If he had demanded in the beginning that they were a "part of the case," he would have saved us much annoyance and expense, and himself a great deal of trouble. The affidavits are as follows:

[Affidavits.]

State of Oregon, Multnomah county, s. s.—I, W. S. Duniway, being first duly sworn, say that on the 15th day of March, A. D. 1881, in the office of the New Northwest, at the city of Portland, county and state aforesaid, I did put up and address to Independence, Polk county, Oregon, a package of New Northwests, and that on the wrapper of the package so put up and addressed by me, there was no other words, written or printed. And that the said package was mailed in good condition, and that when the said package was afterwards returned by Wells, Fargo & Co.'s express to the same office, there were no other words then upon it. W. S. DUNIWAY,

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 12th day of April, A. D. 1881. O. P. MASON,

Notary Public for Oregon.

State of Oregon, Multnomah county, s. s.—We, B. C. Duniway and H. R. Duniway, being first duly sworn, say (each for myself) that on the 17th day of March, A. D. 1881, in the office of the New Northwest, at the city of Portland, county and state aforesaid, W. S. Duniway did in our presence put up said address to Independence, Polk county, Oregon, a package of New Northwests, and that we, and each of us, saw the said package so put up and addressed by him, and that there were no other words written or printed upon the wrapper of said package, and we further say that when the said package was afterwards returned to the said office that there were no other words then upon it.

B. C. DUNIWAY,
H. R. DUNIWAY,

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 12th day of April, A. D. 1881, O. P. MASON,

Notary Public for Oregon.

The inspector offers a disingenuous explanation of his broken promise about the first investigation and his failure to inform us of the result, but forgets to mention that he warned the postal ring to keep the sly exoneration secret and was disgusted when its organ published the acquittal. His entire report is a marvel of inaccuracies, similar to the above, and is in accord with the fraudulent "correspondence from Independence" and the other methods employed by the postal clique in their endeavor to fasten the blame of their mistake (or worse) upon the undersigned; but even Mr. Simpson's statement admits that the whole affair grew out of "a mistake" on the part of the postmaster at Independence. Had the postmaster frankly admitted this at the beginning when we wrote him and asked an explanation, there could have been no controversy about the affair; but we would not submit to have the blame put on us, coupled, as it was, with opprobrious charges.
